The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically. “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He tells his tale about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he has missed the boat to get to school that afternoon and must be skipped school that afternoon and most evening. He is not to be able to boss people around. He is to go work in the kitchen and perform his duties. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house and slutches himself to disguise his misshapen face. He is walking down the streets of St. Petersburg, wondering and antsy. Tom and the new arrival of his half-brother, Huck Finn, are quiet and eventually the newcomer is the only one left.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. He passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of snub. He almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tabor.

Tom comes home at supper, all black and blue, and tired. He tells how he was caught stealing a duck on the river bank, and how he was flogged and shamed by his uncle. Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom’s half-brother, Joe, is angry. Tom’s uncle, Judge Thatcher, is shocked but says nothing.

Tom goes out of the house into the street. He is thinking about正义, but is interrupted by a man carrying a horsewhip. The man asks if Tom has any money, and when Tom says no, the man whips him. Tom runs toward the Targoff house, where he finds his friend Huckleberry Finn.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten his shoes. Joe passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitening in return for a “white alley,” a kind of necklace. Joe almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his job.
L'analisi matematica è il ramo della matematica che si occupa delle proprietà che emergono dalla scomposizione infinita di un oggetto denso. Si fonda sul calcolo infinitesimale, con il quale, attraverso le nozioni di limite e continuità, studia il comportamento locale di una funzione utilizzando gli strumenti del calcolo differenziale e del calcolo integrale.
