The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's naughtiness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He has seen some boys who had been at the seaside, and he wants to skip school that afternoon and go to the seaside, too. Aunt Polly agrees, and shows him that his clothes are still aren't being mended. But first, Tom's half-brother, Ben, the bushwhacker, must be whipped. While rolling the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom is soon in the back of the wagon. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom and the new arrival returned to their house. The new arrival and eventually chases the newcomers all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiterwash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing as well for a "white alley," a kind of mischief. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
