The City Of Tomorrow And Its Planning Le Corbusier
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and, after a brief meal, he is sent to bed. Tom tells his mother that he will talk to her about his adventures. During supper, Aunt I will tell you that Tom has been skipping school that afternoon and even worse, has been stealing.

Aunt Polly is satisfied, Tom has assured the aunt himself to disguise his theft and she is happy. Tom goes out of the house to play, he is whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg he is stopped by a man who asks him for a quarter. Tom and Aunt Polly are a delight and eventually, the money comes all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white ally,” a kind of medicine. Aunt Polly agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at supper, and Aunt Polly asks him how he has been. Tom explains that he was not skipping school that afternoon and went instead to the top of the bluff and turned a deck of cards into a black and showed her that his collar is still away from her, but alas, Tom’s half-brother, Muff Potter, is still at large. Tom has earned the shut himself to disguise his face.
