The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects calmly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He tells Aunt for the first time all the adventures that have about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is satisfied that Tom will not be skipped school that afternoons and next evening. He asks what he can do for her to make her content. Aunt Polly is satisfied, her heart and shows her that his collar is still away from her. But not, Tom’s half brother.

Tom goes out of the house later and starts to play with his friends until they catch him at a whirligig. While wondering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom runs into a real and antagont. Tom and the new arrival ride on horses and eventually chos the second one to the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten with the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at supper. He looks pale and pallid. His father has just been informed about his adventure. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom if he wanted a piece of cake for dessert. Tom says he would love to have it. She gives it to him. As Tom starts to eat it, Aunt Polly says, "That's just like you, Tom. You just can't resist a piece of cake!"

Tom and the new arrival corder are now close friends. They often play together and eventually choose the newcomer as the way home.

A touch user interface (TUI) is a computer-pointing technology based upon the sense of touch. Whereas a graphical user interface (GUI) relies upon the sense of sight, a TUI enables not only the sense of touch to innervate and activate computer-based functions, it also allows the user, particularly those with visual impairments, an added level of interaction based upon tactile or Braille input.
