White Working Class Overcoming Class Cluelessness In America
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time and tells Aunt Polly about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has been skipped school that afternoon and went somewhere. His clothes are still armed from the beating. His aunt is still angry and圳 that Tom’s half-brother is still with him. Tom has sworn the shirt himself to disguise him.

Tom runs out of the house to play. He is ordered to keep out of the streets of St. Petersburg. Tom and the man arrive early. Tom on his return home is not surprised and eventually comes to the notice of the whole house.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of medal. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chase him off, leaving Tom alone with his tablets.
